

Acquisition FAQ for our Valued Clients

What is the official news?

Lightcast, a leader in labor market analytics, has announced its acquisition of Gazelle on April 12, 2023.

How will this impact me?

There are no changes. All of your touchpoints remain the same. You can access Gazelle the same way you have before, and your subscription remains unchanged. Your point of contact at Gazelle remains as is, and you can expect the same service level and support. While there will be some changes that we'll be communicating in the coming weeks, and months, for now it remains business as usual.

Will the Gazelle team and my contacts remain the same?

All of your contacts remain the same. Our entire staff is now part of the Lightcast family, but there won't be any changes to the people you'll be working with or the level of service you've come to expect from us.

What are the benefits of Lightcast & Gazelle joining forces?

This is an exciting and positive move for everyone. It means we're now a stronger company with more resources, skills, and data to serve our clients better. In joining forces with Lightcast, we'll bring together two complementary pioneers in the business intelligence and labor market analytics space. Our combined company will enable us to deliver even greater value, data and actionable insights.

What's next for Gazelle?

Our Account Executives, data scientists, customer success reps and the entire Gazelle team are driven to provide you with the best data insights to solve your most pressing needs. This commitment is stronger than ever during this exciting time.

Will the other Lightcast products be included in Gazelle?

The Gazelle product will remain separate from the other Lightcast products.
